CSCI to do Redesign, Branding for DRADIS LLC

Disaster mapping and modeling tool provides near real-time information

Springfield, Va., March 11, 2009 -Computer Systems Center Incorporated (CSCI) will provide rebranding and design services for DRADIS, LLC, a company dedicated to providing fast, available mapping and modeling of critical infrastructure during natural and man-made disasters. The work to be completed includes the redesign and branding of DRADIS' signature product, as well as design and production of various promotional materials.

"CSCI and our marketing team is looking forward to rebranding DRADIS' product, and supporting their vision to bring a near real-time mapping and modeling tool to emergency operations centers across the country," said Lara Coffee, CSCI Vice President of Marketing and Communications. "Our talented team here has a diverse skill set and we look forward to starting work and projecting a brand image that is right for DRADIS."

The CSCI Marketing and Communications division has received several design awards over the past several years as a result of its creative designs and products.

About DRADIS
